

Jammers Get Acquainted During First Workout At Diethrick

Manager Benny Castillo, far left, meets with his Jamestown Jammers before the team's first workout at Diethrick Park Saturday morning.

"Getting To Know You" could have been the theme song Saturday morning when the Jamestown Jammers and their new manager, Benny Castillo, held their first workout at Diethrick Park.

Castillo, who accepted the Jamestown manager's position in October, admitted before addressing his team prior to the workout that he had met about five or six of his players in extended spring training. But now he has a roster of more than 30 and was taking part in the introductions along with all the players.

This isn't Castillo's first managing position because for the past two seasons he managed the Sioux City Explorers in the independent Northern League. But now he is managing for a major league organization, the Florida Marlins, in the short-season Class A New York-Penn League.

When asked the major difference in managing an independent league team and a major league affiliate, Castillo said, "I think the documentation, the paperwork. That's a big difference. In independent ball you don't have any of that."

And there is quite a difference in the players. "Overall, baseball is baseball wherever you play," he said. "The big difference in independent ball you have guys that have different agendas. Some guys are just in town hanging out and are done with their careers. Some others are trying to make it to the big leagues. But here you will find these guys can smell it, this is very close to the big leagues."

And that's because a big-league team has thought enough of them to offer a contract.

"That's the big difference being in spring training," Castillo said. "You could tell the guys really want to be there."

And it wasn't like that in independent-league baseball.

"Sometimes you have guys who don't care," Castillo said. "Here you have to care because every day these guys are getting evaluated."

Jurkowski Claims Title After Eight-Hole Playoff

FINDLEY LAKE — Kevin Jurkowski of Jamestown made his debut in the Chautauqua County Amateur Golf Tournament a memorable one on Saturday at the lower course at Peek'n Peak Resort.

The long day for Jurkowski ended in fine fashion as he made a par on No. 8 in sudden death to turn back the challenge of Greg Winter.

Winter bogeyed the hole to set the stage for Jurkowski to pull out the win and that is exactly what the 20-year-old Chautauqua Golf Club member accomplished by sinking a 35-foot shot.

"I had a lot of green to work with," said Jurkowski about his decisive shot that spelled victory on the course that was a little wet.

"This felt really good to win the tournament," said Jurkowski, who competed for Jamestown Community College in the NJCAA Division III Golf Championships at Chautauqua earlier this month.

"The only other tournament I have won before was the junior club title at Chautauqua," said Jurkowski.

All four golfers that tied in regulation — Jurkowski, Winter, Joe Johnson and Jason Stoddard came through with pars on the first four holes, but Joe Johnson bowed out on No. 5 with a bogey.

Jurkowski, Winter and Stoddard continued to have pars until Stoddard went out with a bogey on No. 7.

Overall, Jurkowski recorded 17 pars in 26 holes and had nines of 35-36 while playing with JCC teammate Kyle West, who had an even par 72, including a 3-under 33 on the back nine.

Jurkowski also wound up with five birdies in pacing the field of 39 golfers.

West was tied for fifth place at 72 with former Southwestern teammate Jay Lindell, who now competes at St. Bonaventure.

Tom Johnson was first in the Seniors Division with a 73 that tied him overall with P.J. Gronquist and Pete Caprino.

Shelly Grant was second in the Seniors Division with a 74 and that total deadlocked him overall with Alex Bianco.

Defending champion Joe Traniello hit a 75 and was involved in a four-way tie with Paul Miller, Bruce Simon and Adam Singer.

EZ-Go Textron was the gold sponsor, Arthur R. Gren the silver sponsor and Jamestown Macadam the bronze sponsor.

Other sponsors were Ed Shults Auo Group, Acu-Rite, Hope's Architectural Products, Lockwood Agency, H & H Metal Company, Ames Insurance, Charles M. Smith Agency, Bush Industries, Jamestown Advertising & Printing, South Hills Country Club, Mike Kaye of Moon Brook Country Club, Tom Yartz of the Lakewood Golf Center and Chautauqua Sign.

THE ITALIAN AMERICAN A Walk In The Park

Todd D'Angelo, in back, and Steve Handzel line up a putt en route to winning the overall title at the 33rd annual Italian-American Charity Golf Tournament on Saturday at Holiday Valley Resort. They started the day three shots out of the lead, but ended up winning by six shots.

D'Angelo, Handzel Breeze To Victory

By JIM RIGGS

ELLCOTTVILLE — Todd D'Angelo and Steve Handzel had played as a team in the Italian-American Charity Golf Tournament three previous times and their best finish was first place in the Fifth Flight in their first year.

"We've never played in the afternoon (with the leaders) on Saturday," D'Angelo said. "That was one of our goals."

They reached that goal when they came into Saturday's final round of the 33rd annual Italian-American in second place in the First Flight, two shots out of the lead. And they were only three shots out of the overall lead.

That allowed them to play in the afternoon with the other leaders, but they never dreamed their afternoon round would become a walk in the park.

After recording a bogey on their first hole, D'Angelo and Handzel went on an amazing tear of shooting 15 under par for the next 11 holes and eventually coasted to the overall victory by six shots.

Their final round was a net best-ball 58, 14 under par, for a 187 54-hole total.

The 187 for 54 holes tied the tournament record set by the 1985 winners, Phil Cammarata and Dick Cole, at Peek'n Peak Resort.

Finishing second overall was the team of Tim D'Angelo, Todd's brother, and Mike Johnson with a 193.

Heading into the final round, the overall winners set a target score.

"We were thinking overall 8 (under) might do it," D'Angelo said.

"Sixty-three or 64," Handzel added.

In the final round the leading teams start at No. 12 at Holiday Valley Resort so they finish on No. 11, which offers better viewing for spectators. And it was at No. 12 where D'Angelo and Handzel started with a bogey 4, but they weren't discouraged.

"No, because I get a lot of strokes," said D'Angelo, who was playing with a 16 handicap and his partner had a 13.

McGregor Will Be Speaker At BRWS Banquet

Scott McGregor, former Baltimore Orioles ace left-hander, will be the main speaker at the Babe Ruth 16-Year-Old World Series Banquet of Champions Aug. 8 at the Jamestown Community College Physical Education Complex.

McGregor was originally the top draft choice of the New York Yankees in 1972, but made a name for himself after being traded to Baltimore in a 10-player trade in 1976.

A curveballing lefty, McGregor ranks sixth on the all-time Baltimore win list with 138 victories over his 13-year career.

From 1978-1986, McGregor, who also was known for his excellent pickoff move, was in double figures in victories with his best years being 20-8 in 1980 and 18-7 in 1983.

He completed 83 games with a high of 13 in 1978 when he had four of his career 23 shutouts, which ranks him fifth in club history.

Overall, he worked 2,140 innings, allowing 2,245 hits and 949 earned runs for an earned run average of 3.99. He fanned 904 and walked just 518.

McGregor compiled a 1-1 record in two World Series (1979-1983) and a 3-1 record in postseason competition.

Jim Furyk watches his birdie putt on the 18th hole drop to finish at 3-under in the third round of the U.S. Open on Saturday.

Furyk Surges Ahead At Open

OLYMPIA FIELDS, III. (AP) — Jim Furyk knew the putt was going to be a problem even before he left the tee. Now, staring down a 40-footer over a ridge, he reminded himself that par never hurts at the U.S. Open.

Especially with a one-stroke lead, and trouble waiting on every hole.

"I said to my caddie, 'That's going to be a tough putt. I'm trying to get it up there and lag it close,'" he said.

He leaned right as it neared the cup on the par-3 15th, and shook his fist when it dropped, a rare show of emotion from a guy known more for his steely demeanor.

"That," Furyk said, "gave me a burst of energy."

Better yet, it gave him a cushion that grew to three shots by the end of the third round, putting Furyk in the record books and on the cusp of his first major championship.

As Tiger Woods, Vijay Singh and everyone else collapsed around him, Furyk stayed the course at Olympia Fields on Saturday for a 3-under 67 to shatter the 54-hole record.

Not since Woods has anyone been under par by double digits at a U.S. Open.

Not since Woods has anyone looked as much in control.

"I don't expect Jimmy to slip up," Singh said after bogeys on his final three holes, including a three-putt from 15 feet.

Furyk was at 10-under 200, breaking the previous 54-hole record of 203 last matched by Lee Janzen in 1993 at Baltusrol.

Seven Striders Qualify For ESG In July

AMHERST — The Chautauque Striders had seven local athletes qualify for the Empire State Games on Saturday at the Western Region Trials at the University At Buffalo.

Trish Graves qualified for shot put and discus in the Scholastic Women's Division, taking first place in the shot with a throw of 39 feet, 3 inches. In the discus, Graves finished second with a toss of 111-11 1/2.

Rachel Selkregg, also from the Scholastic Women's Division, finished first in the high jump with a leap of 4-10. Meanwhile, Julie Lundgren took first place in the triple jump, soaring 36-7 3/4.

Jenn Anderson placed second in the 100-meter hurdles as well as 400-meter hurdles with times of 15.5 and 1:07.7 respectively.

In the Scholastic Men's Division, Dan Mueller finished second in the 10K with a time of 36:17.85 while Alex Jacques placed second in the javelin throw, launching it 137-10. Meanwhile, Nick Kahanic finished in second place in the discus, finishing with a 141-5. Jeff Rosage placed second in the shot put with a throw of 47-6.

The Empire State Games will be held July 24-26 at the University at Buffalo.

Jammers

And that's why Castillo is happy to be managing for a major-league affiliate. He smiled and said, "You like this better (than independent baseball) because anything you tell these guys, they'll believe. These guys are green. In independent ball you have guys who think they know it all because they've been at a high level."

For instance, Castillo, who is 34, recalled managing a 40-year old player two seasons ago.

"You just stay out of those guy's way," he said.

And who was in charge when Castillo managed in an independent league?

"It's what the city wants and what the manager wants and what the fans wanted," he said. "What they're doing is making money (or trying to) in independent ball."

But now with the Jammers, the goal is to develop possible major-league players from a roster filled with mainly first-time professionals and a few with a year or two of experience.

"These kids feel great right now," Castillo said of the newcomers dreaming of making it to the major leagues. "I think I will enjoy this now because of that."

And another difference from independent baseball is Castillo must teach his players the Florida organization's style of baseball.

"We're not trying to tell them to be robots, but we're going to show them the way we think is best for them to get to the big leagues," he said. "It's trying to get these guys to start thinking like major-league players. That's where they want to be."

He added, "It's a good thing for me, too. I'm learning, I'm evaluated every single day. We're all evaluated every single day. It's a stressful job, but it's a fun job."

That's why he was excited about his first day of workouts with his players.

"I can't wait because I was once in their shoes," said Castillo, who was drafted by Detroit and made it as far as Double A as an outfielder. "I was in the Appalachian League, so I know what they're going through and it's fun."

But he also thinks his time with an independent-league team was valuable.

"I think independent ball is good for anybody, even players sometimes," he said. "It's a grind and you learn to appreciate things."

Then looking out at his clubhouse of Marlins' prospects, Castillo added, "For me, I'm in heaven right now."

The Jammers will hold another workout tonight around 6 or 6:30 as they prepare for the NY-P League season opener at Auburn on Tuesday.

Jamestown's home opener is Saturday at 7:05 p.m. against Batavia.

Hampton Pitches Braves Past Seattle; Giambi Powers Yanks

SEATTLE (AP) — Mike Hampton pitched two-hit ball into the eighth inning for his first victory in more than a month and the Atlanta Braves beat the Seattle Mariners 3-1 Saturday.

The Braves snapped a seven-game winning streak by Seattle starter Jamie Moyer (10-3), who left with one out in the eighth after allowing an RBI double by Andrew Jones that made it 3-0.

Atlanta evened the series between the top teams in the majors at a game apiece. Greg Maddux pitches for the Braves (45-21) on Sunday, while Gil Meche goes for the Mariners (44-22).

Hampton (3-3) hadn't won since May 11 against San Francisco. John Smoltz, who took over with no outs and the bases loaded in the eighth, earned his major league-leading 26th save in 27 opportunities. It was only the second time this season he pitched two innings.

Yankees 13, Cardinals 4

Jason Giambi hit a pair of two-run homers and Ruben Sierra and Raul Mondesi also connected as New York roughed up St. Louis.

Hideki Matsui drove in four runs, three on a first-inning double that got the rout started before a rain delay of 1 hour, 27 minutes.

A day after Roger Clemens earned his 300th career victory and got his 4,000th strikeout, the Yankees won with hitting. New York built an 11-2 lead after four innings, and that let Andy Pettitte (6-6) coast.

Former Yankees star Tino Martinez did the only damage for the Cardinals, twice hitting two-run homers and drawing a big cheer from the crowd of 55,174 each time.

Matt Morris (7-4) leads the NL with four complete games, but the New York bats and the bad weather combined to chase him after just two outs.

Ruben Sierra and Raul Mondesi also homered for the Yankees off Brett Tomko. Pettitte gave up two runs and five hits in seven innings, striking out eight and walking one.

Dodgers 5, Indians 2

Andy Ashby got his first win this season as Dave Ross homered and drove in three runs, leading Los Angeles to its fifth straight win.

The game also featured some heated trash talk between Cleveland's Milton Bradley and Los Angeles' Paul Lo Duca, who were wired with microphones for TV.

Athletics 5, Expos 4

Scott Hatteberg hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning, and Eric Byrnes also homered as Oakland rallied to beat Montreal.

With the A's trailing 3-2, Mark Ellis was hit by a pitch leading off the eighth. Chris Singleton sacrificed and Byrnes singled, putting runners at the corners.

Hatteberg hit a 1-1 pitch from Luis Ayala (5-2) over the right-field fence for his first homer since May 4 at Yankee Stadium, a drought of 29 games and 121 at-bats. He has four this season.

Cubs 4, Blue Jays 2

Moises Alou hit a two-run triple and scored on a throwing error as Mark Prior and the Chicago Cubs ended Toronto's five-game winning streak.

Sammy Sosa missed his fourth straight game while serving a seven-game suspension for using a corked bat. The Cubs are 2-2 without their cleanup hitter.

Carlos Delgado hit his major league-leading 22nd homer for the Blue Jays.

Pirates 12, Devil Rays 9

Aramis Ramirez drove in four runs with a three-run double and a homer, and Pittsburgh held on to snap a six-game losing streak.

Four players were ejected during a bench-clearing brawl that started after Marlon Anderson was hit by a pitch from Josh Fogg in the fourth inning.

Red Sox 8, Astros 4

Derek Lowe pitched into the eighth inning and David Ortiz hit a three-run double as Boston beat former manager Jim Williams and Houston for the second straight night.

Johnny Damon had three hits one day after his tiebreaking homer sent the Red Sox to a 4-3 win. Boston has won seven of 11 after a season-high five-game losing streak.

Giants 7, Royals 4

Edgardo Alfonzo, who had only one RBI since May 21, drove in four runs to lead San Francisco over Kansas City.

Rich Aurilia had three hits and two RBIs for the Giants. Damian Moss (7-4) allowed three runs in 6 1/2 innings for his second win in seven starts.

D'backs 9, Twins 2

Luis Gonzalez went 3-for-5 with four RBIs for Arizona in support of Miguel Batista as the banged-up Diamondbacks beat Minnesota.

Alex Cintron went 3-for-4 with three runs scored, Rod Barajas had two hits and three RBIs and Carlos Baerga added two hits and drove in two runs for Arizona, which tied a season high with seven doubles.

White Sox 6, Padres 5

Frank Thomas hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning, rallying Chicago past San Diego.

Carlos Lee hit a three-run shot and Magglio Ordonez also homered for Chicago. Billy Koch retired Ryan Klesko on a flyball with the bases loaded to end it.

Tigers 9, Rockies 7

Eric Munson hit a go-ahead three-run homer in the sixth inning, helping Detroit snap an eight-game losing streak.

Warren Morris went 4-for-5 for the Tigers, who tied season highs for runs and hits (15).

Brewers 8, Orioles 3

Richie Sexson hit his 21st homer and nearly started a brawl after being hit by a pitch in Milwaukee's victory over Baltimore.

After connecting off Jason Johnson in the first inning, Sexson was struck by the first pitch from the right-hander in the third. The slugger took a few steps toward the mound and yelled at Johnson while being restrained by Orioles catcher Brook Fordyce.

Both benches and bullpens promptly emptied. Although dozens of players congregated near the mound, no punches were thrown. Both teams were warned and there was no more trouble.

Phillies 12, Reds 2

Bobby Abreu hit a home run, and David Bell homered and had four RBIs during Philadelphia's 10-run eighth inning as the Phillies snapped a three-game losing streak with a rout of Cincinnati in the only NL game of the day.

One night after a bench-clearing brawl led to five ejections, Reds starter Danny Graves (3-6) hit Phillies catcher Mike Lieberthal with a breaking ball to load the bases with two outs in the first inning.

Lieberthal, who tackled Adam Dunn as he charged the mound to start the melee Friday, trotted to first base with a smile on his face. Despite three more hit batsmen, there was no other trouble Saturday.

Randy Wolf (8-3), who has won his last three starts and five of his last six decisions, improved to 4-1 against Cincinnati, including 2-0 this season.

"Plus we had a par 5 coming up," Handzel said.

They immediately forgot about the bogey when D'Angelo had a natural birdie 4 at No. 13 for a net eagle 3. Then he followed with net birdies on the next two holes before Handzel birdied No. 16 for a net eagle 3 and the team was suddenly 5 under after five holes.

But they were just getting started.

D'Angelo had net birdies on the next two holes and they were 7 under after seven holes.

"I didn't say anything," D'Angelo said about his team's hot start.

But Handzel thought things might get better because, "We had been doing well on the front (nine)."

And they continued that trend when Handzel chipped in from 20 yards at No. 1 and from 10 yards at No. 2, both for natural birdies and net eagle 2s.

That put them 11 under after nine holes!

"We were just thinking stay there," D'Angelo said.

But they didn't. They went lower.

D'Angelo parred the next three holes for three net birdies to move the team to 14 under with six holes to go. And his thoughts at that point were, "Don't explode."

The only "explosion" was back-to-back pars, a bogey and another par before they moved on to a pair of tough finishing holes — Nos. 10 and 11.

They were hoping to simply record a couple of bogeys for net pars to finish out. That happened at No. 10, but at No. 11 Handzel recorded a par for another net birdie and final total of 14 under.

Looking back at the round, D'Angelo mentioned he figured things were looking good when someone mentioned they had a seven-shot lead when they turned to the front nine.

"They're (pursuers) not going to make up seven shots no matter how bad we play," D'Angelo said were his thoughts at that point.

And no one did catch the eventual winners, both former Jamestown residents, whose previous best score was a 67. D'Angelo now lives in Concord, N.C. and Handzel in Boston, Mass.

With both the overall winner and runnerup teams coming out of the First Flight, Ang Volpe and Bill Emerson won the flight with a 197. Jack Munella and Dave Currie were second with 200 while Tom D'Angelo Jr., Todd's other brother, and Steve Johnson were third with 203.

The Second Flight was won with a 197 by John Calamunci and Ken Johnson, who came into the final round as the overall leaders. Pete Pillitteri and Andy Sandstrom were second with 202 and Jim Barlow Jr. and Brett Fulford took third with 204.

Mike Guinta and Frank Farrell won the Third Flight with 201. Three teams tied for second with 205s and Pat Smeraldo and Grant Keppel won the playoff for second, while Jim Guinta and Nelson Johnson won the continued playoff for third. Russ Certo and David Dawson had to settle for fourth.

Rocky Morgan and John Trout had 206 to win the Fourth Flight while Tom Brigiotta and Mike Goldman were second with 208 and Phil Ribaldo and Brad Lefford were third with 211.

In the Fifth Flight, Frank Bagiano and Jack Fulford won with 205. In second with 209 were Sam Restivo Jr. and Dave Lockwood and third with 210 were Henry Mole and Mike Anderson.

Sam Peppy and Charlie Moss had 209 to win the Sixth Flight while John Sirianno and Mark Lockwood were second with 212. Finishing third were Mike Cappa and Pete Sullivan with a 218.

In the Seventh Flight, Ted Pasquale and Paul Hedberg took the title with 217. Lou Bianco and Todd Patric finished second with 219 and Rich Conti and Al Miller were third with 220.
